

Contract for Deed Term Sheet

Proposed Contract for Deed Sale - 4121 Tensity Dr, Raleigh, NC 27604

Prepared: June 26, 2026 | Draft version: 26-06-26 V4

Purpose: This term sheet is a plain-English summary of the proposed deal for review and discussion. It is not the final contract and does not transfer title. The final Contract for Deed, note, memorandum, trade-property addendum, title/trailer paperwork, buyer qualification review, and attorney review still control. If this summary conflicts with the final signed documents, the final signed documents control.

1. Plain-Language Deal Summary

[BUYER NAME REDACTED] would purchase 4121 Tensity Dr under a proposed Contract for Deed for $346,500.00. The proposed deal is made up of $28,650.00 cash due at closing, $225,450.00 credit for the three manufactured homes, and $86,400.00 financed by the seller.

3. Proposed Purchase Structure

The proposed Contract for Deed separates the cash payment, the credit for the manufactured homes, and the amount financed by the seller so each part can be shown clearly in the final documents.

| Item                                       | Details                                                                                                            |

| Earnest money at signing            | $6,000.00                                                                                                         |
| Cash due at closing                 | $28,650.00                                                                                                        |
| Credit for three manufactured homes | $225,450.00                                                                                                       |
| Total cash and credits              | $260,100.00                                                                                                       |
| Amount financed by seller           | $86,400.00                                                                                                        |
| How the purchase price is made up   | $28,650.00 cash + $225,450.00 trade credit + $86,400.00 seller financing = $346,500.00 proposed purchase price |

4. Manufactured Homes Included as Trade Credit

The buyer is expected to transfer title or ownership rights to the manufactured homes below as part of the deal. The credit is not final until the required title work, approvals, possession items, and other closing conditions are completed and accepted.

| Property                     | Type        | Credit              | What still has to happen                  |
|------------------------------|-------------|---------------------|-------------------------------------------|
| 5009 Sunnyfield Dr    | Single wide | $63,000.00         | Required before final credit is counted   |
| 5021 Sunnyfield Dr    | Double wide | $93,600.00         | Required before final credit is counted   |
| 5512 Desert Willow Ln | Single wide | $68,850.00         | Required before final credit is counted   |
| Total credit          |             | $225,450.00 | Subject to trade-property addendum |

5. What Must Happen for the Trade Credit to Count

The credit for the manufactured homes is conditional. Before it counts as final, the buyer must deliver acceptable title or bill-of-sale documents, lien releases or payoff proof, possession/keys, tenant and rent information, and park/lot approvals.

The final trade-property addendum should spell out title, possession, park approval, liens, tenant rents, verification, condition, and remedies.

If a required item is not delivered and accepted, the final documents should say whether the missing credit becomes additional cash due, a purchase-price adjustment, a closing-condition issue, or another agreed remedy. The proposed values are working numbers until accepted.

6. Amount Financed by Seller

The seller-financed balance is expected to be shown in a note signed by the buyer and carried under the Contract for Deed, unless the attorney recommends a different final structure.
